The principle of the nursery school in Bapsfontein squatter camp, Johanna, called us one day while working in the squatter camp, with some bad news. She told us there is a property next to the squatter camp, where people moved away and left their animals behind.

We went there immediately and found one dog, a chow, and a black cat. The animals have been left on their own for almost two weeks. Both were so bewildered and frightened that our first attempt to rescue them was unsuccessful.

We called in the help of Wet Nose, an animal rescue centre in Pretoria. In a team effort the next day, we managed to catch both the dog and the cat.

The chow's coat was in such a bad condition that all his hair had to be shaven off. Both are doing well in the care of Wet Nose.

Abandoned for almost two weeks, now safe at Wet Nose looking for loving homes.....

We managed to locate the owners of these animals and opened a case of animal cruelty against them. We are waiting for the outcome.
